Why You Need a Sabbath from Your Tech

January 27, 2022

by: Tony Reinke

Remember Your Finitude

We may always work with machines, but we must never become machines. The human body is remarkable in similarities to an efficient machine, but we are physical beings with finite limitations and eternal souls. We process slower than supercomputers, but that's no flaw in our design.

Ever since the miner created the first vocation set free from the circadian rhythms of day and night, man has been tempted to overwork. We are always tempted to be something more than human. AI pushes this desire to new heights, calling for humans to begin intellectually keeping pace with the warp speed of machine learning. Today Elon Musk wants us to think, "We are literally a brain in a vat. The vat is your skull. Everything you think is real is an electrical signal."¹ And if you don't agree with his human-computer model, Musk gives an ominous forecast. "Under any rate of advancement in AI, we will be left behind by a lot," he said of humans. "The benign situation with ultra-intelligent AI is that we would be so far below in intelligence, we'd be like a pet, or a house cat. I don't love the idea of being a house cat."²

In order to compete with superintelligence, we must become more than brains in a vat. We must become cyborgs, brains augmented with high-power computing capabilities. To remain relevant, humans must adapt to the warp-speed advances of our technologies. Humans must identify computer-morphically. We must become machines.

If we fail to resist this techno-tyranny, we will become cyborgified machines. We will live like Charlie Chaplin in his 1936 silent film Modern Times, in the scene when his frantic bolt-tightening pace is too slow and he gets sucked by a conveyor belt down into the gears of the machine, twisted and curved like a human chain. We are not machines. Our relevance is not determined by our unstopping output. But man has always been tempted to work like a machine, even back in the age of the steam engine.

From the pulpit Spurgeon once admitted: "I am always ready to try a new machine."³ He was an early tech adopter and loved new gadgets. I can imagine no better Londoner to hear Edison's first recording. His own preaching style was so radical that a newspaper editorial cartoon once satirized him preaching while sitting atop a rushing express train.⁴ Spurgeon was innovative, fast, and revolutionary, but he knew how to pull the brakes. He used the steam engine as a metaphor of caution to warn his church of this tendency for humans to morph into the image of their machines.

“Ours is not a religion of mechanics and hydrostatics: it is spiritual, and must be sustained by spiritual means.”⁵ One hundred days before the golden spike was driven to connect America’s First Transcontinental Railroad, opening new doors for express travel on the rails, Spurgeon preached this concern: “In these days, when everybody travels by express and works like a steam-engine, the mental wear and tear are terrible, and the advice of the Great Master to the disciples to go into the desert and rest awhile is full of wisdom, and ought to have our earnest attention.”⁶ Techno-dehumanization is older than sliced bread, for tech has always tried to tempt us with the stale bread of anxious toil.⁷

In the digital age, man is told to become a hyper-processor like a computer. In the Industrial Age, man was told to become hyperkinetic like a factory. And in the age of the steam engine, man was told to maintain the hypertorque of unstopping pistons. The message of fear was the same: “Accelerate or be run over.” In the age of steam, machines, and computers, the church reminds the world of the Sabbath rest.

For all its good, the technium will never understand the Sabbath, nor will it understand anthropology 101, why humans are not angels or animals or robots or machines or computer processors. Preserving the nature and purpose of man will be the work of the church for a long time to come. We slow down. We stop. We let the boiler tank of marketable activity stop and cool down. Our day of rest reminds us and the world that we are humans made for something greater than hyper-accelerated, nonstop computation and production.

Stewardship

Be a Cheerful Giver in 2022

Each one must give as he has decided in his heart, not reluctantly or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver. (2 Corinthians 9:7)

God promises to meet all our needs—not all our wants. There is a difference, of course, in what you really need and what you sometimes think you need. Thankfully, God knows the difference. He loves you, and he wants to make sure you lack nothing. But he also wants to make sure you learn to be like him, and he is generous.

God gives us free will to determine what’s generous—it is our decision. God loves it when we give because we want to, out of love for him and a desire to be like him.

You may have heard someone say, “To give until it hurts”.? Isn’t it much better to give until it feels good? In 2022 let’s all give until it becomes joyful- not forced, reluctant or under pressure.

“God loves a cheerful giver.” Stay warm Disciples!

Thy Will Be Done

Our Father who art in Heaven hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done, on earth as it is in Heaven. By my estimation, I have prayed the prayer that Jesus taught his disciples well over 7300 times. That did not change when I became sick in December of 2020. In fact, I leaned on the Lord's Prayer as well as my daily reading of God's word. I start my day in scripture and have done so for the past 17 years.

About three weeks into my illness, I ended up at the emergency room at Mayo Clinic. As I look back, I was dying, although I didn't know that at that time My kidneys were in the early stages of shutting down. I gained 40 pounds of fluid in three days. My liver and spleen were enlarged to the point I looked pregnant. Mayo Clinic did a battery of tests. Blood cultures, bone marrow biopsies, spinal tap, and lymph node biopsies. I went home after seven days of poking and prodding only to be called back three days later for removal of several lymph nodes. Then the waiting began.

For those of you who know me, I can deal with facts and can make decisions pretty quickly. That's the reality in running businesses. But leave me to speculation and I am my own worst enemy. My family, friends and church family all rallied around me with prayer. All wanted to know "how do you feel". Natural and normal questions and genuine concern for my wellbeing.

I have to confess that not knowing what illness I had was the hardest thing I have ever experienced. It ate my lunch!

One morning I awoke at 4:30 AM. I followed my routine of making coffee and settled in for my daily scripture reading. For some reason, that morning I prayer the Lord's Prayer first. Normally, I prayed that prayer as I went to bed at night, not first thing in the morning. When I got to "Thy will be done ", I stopped. My eyes opened as I looked up and said out loud "wait a minute God, what if thy will is not my will". I am sick. I don't know what I have. I am on an emotional roller coaster.

Out of the chair and on my knees, tears running down my face, hands lifted to the sky, I surrendered whatever this was to God. I had to trust in God's will for my life. I literally felt that burden of speculation lifted from my shoulders. As I look back at this, it was as powerful as the day I committed my life to Jesus some twenty years ago. After this tearful two hours with God, I got about reading my daily Bible plan. What do you think the first reading of that day was? Well, it was the 23rd Psalm. "The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want". Wow, was that a confirmation. More tears.

The diagnosis came in early February. Idiopathic Multi-Centric Castleman's Disease. A rare disease with no known cure. Now, I have the facts and can deal with it. Treatment is chemo every 30 days. The downside to this chemo is it had eradicated my Covid vaccines so no protection from that virus. I stay pretty much locked down.

My faith, church family, prayers from all of you and my family and friends have stood me up throughout this process. My prayers to God are "what do you want me to do with all you have taught me through this journey"? His plan for my life on this earth is not over yet.

I want to encourage you that whatever circumstance you find yourself in, God is walking right beside you. Give it up to HIM!

There are many scriptural references in the Bible that speak to this but I leave you with this one.

Psalms 55:22. "Cast your burden on the Lord, and he will sustain you; he will never permit the righteous to be moved. "

To God be the Glory

Love in Action

*“Whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers and sisters of mine, you did for Me.”
Matthew 25:45*

Every seat in our sanctuary on the lawn or inside our building represents someone whose faith pours out in love and service. Each person at FCCB has the opportunity to change part of the world for the better. This month we're focusing on two ways we help our beaches neighbors and those beyond our community who lack a consistent warm place to sleep and a clean, snuggly blanket.

This winter we will again host Cold Night Shelter in our Fellowship Hall when needed. (FCCB is one of several beach churches that rotate providing this ministry.) Donors of dollars and food supplies, cooks, food servers, bag lunch makers, drivers, greeters, hosts, cleaners, prayers are God's hands, feet, voice, and heart extended in preparation for, during (everyone attending receives a blanket to use while here), and immediately afterward. Steve Fitzgerald is our Cold Night Coordinator. Contact him at sdfritz59@gmail.com or 904-525-7582, for more information and/or to serve on the team.

We can't always be physically present with someone in need, but Church World Service (CWS) Blankets is another way to help. CWS provides thousands of blankets worldwide each year to those who need them. For many, a simple blanket given when they most need it is a loving way to offer warmth, to offer hope, to be the hands of Christ. Many people without homes have a daily challenge of fighting the bitter cold. Around the world, disasters force people from their homes, sending them to shelters and refugee camps where a blanket makes a difference.

FCCB will host CWS Blanket Sunday on February 13. Look for the bulletin insert/envelope for more information. Make your check or electronic gift to FCCB with the memo BLANKET SUNDAY. Help blanket the world with love for the glory of God. Your support means comfort for neighbors who are facing displacement, disaster, or the strain of poverty. Every $10 donation provides a sturdy, comforting blanket to a child or adult, giving them warmth, shelter, hope and security during cold or trying times.

Youth House Steering Committee

Committee Report by Rita Vernon
Youth House Steering Committee Chair

Work continues on the Youth House. We are getting closer to completion but there remain a few outstanding items that need completed. The Leadership Council, along with our Liaison Bob Meador are continuing to work to keep the project from stalling. We greatly appreciate their efforts.

To date we are still approximately $150,000.00 short of the funds needed to complete the project. If you are led to donate, your donation will be happily accepted. We also still have some items needed for the Youth House. See John Madison if you would like to contribute to furnishings and equipment for the Youth Building. As always, we covet your prayers for the building that we may get into sooner, rather than later.

Walk To EMMAUS #82

Feb. 24-27 for men and March 3-6 for women.

If you are interested in taking your Christian Walk, please contact our Elder Diane Stevenson at 904-219-2122.

The "Walk to Emmaus" is a 72-hour retreat. The weekend begins on Thursday evening and ends Sunday evening.

At Emmaus, three busy and very enjoyable days are spent at a designated place. Participants live and study together in singing, prayer, worship, and discussion.

Discussions center around fifteen talks given by laity and clergy. These talks present the theme of God's grace, and how that grace comes alive in the Christian community and expresses itself in the world.

Attendees discover how grace is real and how it is possible to live in the life of grace, bringing grace to others.

Holy Communion is celebrated daily during the retreat. Participants begin to understand more fully the presence of Christ in His body of believers.

God's grace is experienced personally through the prayers and acts of service of a living support community.

Library News

Quote:

“You can never get a cup of tea large enough or a book long enough to suit me.”

— C.S. Lewis

A sample of the most recent library additions:

- The Book of Bible Promises
- Chicken Soup-Giving Thanks
- Prayer: How Praying Together Shapes the Church
- Gentle and Lowly
- The Heart of the Chronicles of Narnia

I am relatively new to First Christian Church of the Beaches. I first attended in person two weeks in early 2020. Then COVID hit and I participated online. Now I am back in the building and enjoying the fellowship. I was surprised to see how many wonderful resources the church library has available. Please stop by if you have not visited recently.

The books are arranged by broad topics:

The Christian Living section is expansive and includes a large set of Max Lucado books just to name one well-known author.

The Classic Christian Literature shelf near the closet has several C. S. Lewis books, another favorite of mine.

Blessings!
